

Speaker: Helen Frankenthaler was a friend of Pollock, Krasner, and de Kooning. Her painting style is similar to Rothco's color-filled paintings. Like Pollock, she had to work on the floor and instead of flinging and dripping the paint, she poured thin paint out on to the raw canvas and she called this style Stained Painting.

[00:00:21] [END OF AUDIO]