

Speaker: Futurism was based in Italy, and it came after Cubism and they utilized cubist forms. The futurists had a manifesto, and their manifesto stated that central to their mission was to express our whirling life of steel, of pride, of fever and of speed. They were fascinated with depictions of various aspects of a moving object, whereas Cubism was mostly static.

[00:00:30] [END OF AUDIO]