

Narrator: Germany finally coalesced and became a country, but as part of the frictions of industrial society and class struggles continue to persist, philosophers and economists Engles and Marx crafted the Communist Manifesto which would have profound implications in the next century.

[00:00:20] [END OF AUDIO]