

Speaker: Louise Nevelson took a different approach to art assemblages. Hers are very unified and cohesive, they're very structured and organized. They're generally very large, taking up an entire wall, and they are composed of distinct units. The medium with what she works is woods crafts, primarily from furniture making, and they are painted in a single color, usually black.

[00:00:27] [END OF AUDIO]