

Female Speaker: The advent of the home computer and printer have transformed art reproduction, particularly in computer-generated art and photography. Ben Mcqueen, an Alaskan photographer that I've known for many years, not only takes his art photographs on digital cameras, but he now prints them without having to use a dark room. He can make gorgeous prints on his high-quality photographic printers at home. He can also manipulate those images on his computer, as well, to a higher degree than what was ever possible in a dark room.

[00:00:30]

[00:00:31] [END OF AUDIO]