Speaker: In this course, you will be using outline presentations in conjunction with many lectures and internet resources, which include audio clips, optional online videos, and Flash Point presentations. When you are directed to an internet resource, particularly one that is very text-based, I do not expected you to read every word. In fact, I know you won't. I do encourage you however to skim through things on the internet.

Use your written assignments to help you focus your attention on the important factual information and to help you synthesize information into a meaningful context. The beauty of the internet is that then, you can use this bounty as a resource which will allow you to follow your own interests, particularly, when you're presenting your own blogs.

[00:00:48] [END OF AUDIO]

File name: internet.mp3